BAD AUTO SMASH-UP NEAR ALLPORT, PA., SUNDAY AFTERNOON

According to the Phillipsburg Journal, Allport, Morris township, was the scene of a rather serious automobile collision Sunday afternoon, about 2:30, when five persons were injured and both cars smashed up, the occupants of one of the cars being Mr. and Mrs. William Sles, of Spruce street, here and visiting relatives.

Mr. Sles, his wife and the latter's sister, Mrs. James Holter, and Mrs. Holter's daughter, Mrs. Albert Long, and little son, Frank W. Long, who have been visiting at the Sles home, started out for a drive to the Kylenburg and Grant, Pa. region in Mr. Sles's Essex car. As they were passing through Allport, an Essex car driven at high speed came from the cross road. Mr. Sles ran into the gutter and broke down, a fence to avoid the impending collision, but it was of no avail, the Essex car, which the driver had seemingly lost control of, smashing into the Sles car with frightful force. The car was badly smashed up, and all the occupants except Mr. Sles thrown out by the terrific impact.

The Essex car, which was driven by Wesley Hoover of the Clearfield Rural Delivery route No. 5, turned completely over as it collided with the Dorris. Two persons with Hoover, Alex Beveridge and Wynne Hubler, were caught under the overturned car.

Scores of persons reached the scene quickly and rescued the injured. The Cottage State hospital ambulance was sent for and the seriously hurt taken to that institution.

Mrs. Holter has a fractured pelvis. Her daughter and little son, however, escaped injury. Mrs. Sles received a cut over the eye and is suffering from shock, but is up and around at her home. Mr. Sles, who was caught in the wrecked car, has a fractured breastbone, a couple of broken ribs and serious injuries to his hips. He is being cared for at his residence.

The driver of the Essex escaped injury, but the two men with him, Beveridge and Hubler, were taken to the hospital. Beveridge has a fracture of the clavicle and Hubler received head injuries. The latter was able to leave the hospital later. Both injured men live in the Summit Hill section of Clearfield county.

GOV. WALTON IS OUSTED AS OKLAHOMA EXECUTIVE BY UNANIMOUS BALLOT; ACQUITTED ON SOME OF CHARGES

Oklahoma, City, Nov. 19.—Governor J. C. Walton was removed from office today by a unanimous vote of the State Senate court of impeachment on the first article of the impeachment bill submitted for its consideration.

The vote, which was on the charge that the executive had abused his position and parole authority, was 41 to 0 for conviction.

The verdict of guilty also was returned on article 2, charging the executive with placing his personal chauffeur on the state pay roll. Six senators voted for acquittal on this charge.

A member of Governor Walton's counsel, who re-entered the senate chamber when the roll call on the verdict was started, entered exceptions to the vote on both counts. The governor had not been represented since he withdrew Saturday.

Governor Walton was acquitted of a charge of corruption in connection with the purchase of his residence here. The vote was 23 to 18, which was less than two-thirds needed for conviction.

In rapid succession the court sustained the charges that the governor had padded the state pay rolls, dispersed a grand jury, suspended the habeas corpus, issued deficiency certificates when no deficiency existed, obstructed the October and special elections, collected excessive campaign funds and illegally sought contributions and gifts.

Interspersed with the conviction were acquittals on charges of bribery contained in Article 5, abrogated the death penalty and illegally made irresponsible persons state officers.

The executive was acquitted of Article 1, charging that he illegally appointed a member of the state legislature to a district judgeship.

A verdict of guilty was returned on the general incompetency charge. With the completion of the vote the record showed Governor Walton was found guilty of 11 of the 22 impeachment charges, originally presented against him.

He was acquitted of five and evidence on the remaining six never was presented by the prosecution. The court's formal vote to remove the governor from office was unanimous.

The remaining six charges of impeachment, charging Governor Walton with offenses in connection with his declaration of martial law in the state, were dismissed by the court on motion of the prosecution.

Immediately afterward counsel for the executive filed application for a new trial. (This was denied by a standing vote of the court.)

Five Buried Under Fifty Feet of Earth in Tunnel Under City of Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 20.—Six workmen were buried in a cave-in of an underground tunnel here today. One man, unidentified, was removed by firemen and taken to a hospital. Policemen and firemen worked frantically to reach the remaining five workers, who are believed to be buried at least fifty feet below the street.

"I got what I expected from that particular Court," the ousted executive said in announcing his attorneys' will carry to the Supreme Court of the United States the fight to replace him in office.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 20.—

"The people of Oklahoma wanted Governor Walton removed. We carried out their mandate."

With this statement today the House Board of Managers, which prosecuted impeachment charges against Walton, answered his assertion that he had not received a fair trial.

"Jack" Walton, whose meteoric career reached its height in the war against the KuKlux Klan, was found guilty by the Senate on 11 of 6 impeachment articles and removed from office late Monday.

INDIAN PRINCESS FIRST TO OFFER SERVICES IN WAR

Princess Tsaniana, the famous Indian prima donna, who appears here shortly with Charles Wakefield Cadman, America's foremost composer, has the great honor of being the first girl west of the Mississippi to respond to the appeal of General Pershing for volunteers to entertain our boys "Over There."

She also has the distinctive honor of being the first American girl to sing on the Rhine after the armistice was signed. She went into Germany with the first American troops to cross the Rhine, and on Christmas morning 1918, she sang the famous German Christmas Carol "Holy Night" in the Kaiser's church at Coblenz; the occasion marked the one hundred anniversary of the song. At New Weid, Germany, on New Year's Day, 1919, she was officially adopted by the Second Division, Major General Le Jeune commanding. Since her return to this country, she has been made an active member of the American Legion, an honor conferred on very few women in the world.

For her work in England, France and Germany, she was cited and received letters of commendation from the various generals in command. On one of her most cherished possessions is a letter from Major General W. G. Haan, as follows: Headquarters Seventh Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, Germany, April 22, 1919. "Princess Tsaniana is commended for the excellent work she has accomplished in organizing an all-Indian unit from Indian soldiers of the Seventh Corps. She came here alone and for a considerable time entertained most attractively by herself. Thus she undertook the task of organizing an entertainment unit composed of all Indian personnel, and she accomplished wonderful results. From everywhere reports come of the excellent entertainments she has given, and this is not only from heresy; but the undersigned personally has observed the work of this young lady. She is the true American girl in Europe, and is a real princess by her work and her American girl whom we have learned to love and respect for her excellent character and for her excellent work." Signed, W. G. Haan, Major General, U. S. A.

The Pickelny boy was kidnapped apparently by a maniac, police said, and was murdered when search for the child made keeping him any longer dangerous. Hunt has been under way for weeks. Two Hundred Delegates Ask Him For Constitutional Amendment Giving Them Equal Rights

PRESIDENT CITES INEQUALITIES OF THE PRESENT TIME

Washington, Nov. 19.—President Coolidge today told 200 delegates to the conference of the National Woman's Party on the proposed constitutional amendment for "equal rights for women" that if the women of the country really wanted anything in the way of legislation they were likely to get it. In any event, the President said, if the proposal of the National Woman's Party was presented to Congress as it was presented by the women at the White House today, Congress would be found "very responsive."

The President spoke only briefly and more or less informally after he had received the women in the White House executive offices and listened to a statement of their program presented by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the party; Mrs. Victor du Pont, of Wilmington; Miss Maud

HUNTING ACCIDENTS CAUSE A FATALITY AND LOSS OF ARM

One of the saddest hunting accidents in years occurred near Heilwood Saturday morning when the gun carried by Giacomo Bruno, aged 20 years, was accidentally discharged, the charge entering the face and breast of his brother, Gaisoppo Bruno, aged 18 years, causing almost instant death, says the Indiana Gazette.

During the progress of the morning the brothers were standing about four rods apart. Bringing his gun into position quickly to get a rabbit, the weapon was accidentally discharged, and Giacomo was horrified to see his brother clutch his hands to his chest and fall motionless to the ground. Assistance was rendered at once, but death came within a few minutes.

The Bruno boys were among the most popular youths of Heilwood and the tragic ending of their day's sport has cast a pall of gloom over the community.

Clair Dyerly, aged 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dyerly, of Spranklin Mills, lost an arm as the result of a hunting accident Saturday afternoon. The limb was removed in the Adrian hospital.

Young Dyerly, with several companions was out for rabbits in the neighborhood of his home, carrying a shotgun. As he attempted to climb a fence, the gun was accidentally discharged, the lead entering the left arm below the elbow, completely shattering the bone and mangle the arm to a mass of pulp.

He was hurried to the Adrian hospital where the arm was taken off below the elbow within half an hour of his arrival.

The boy suffered seriously from loss of blood, but his condition today is good.

The saloon was ordered closed two weeks ago by Federal injunction, but police said it had remained open. The damage was estimated at $12,000.

WHAT YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT THE NEW LAWS ON MOTOR DRIVER LICENSES; READ THIS AND AVOID HEAVY PENALTIES

State Will Hold Exams All Operators of Cars,
For Drivers In Many Even Though Owners,
Parts of The State Must Have Licenses

Harrisburg, Nov. 20.—The State Highway Department has announced that after January 1st it will establish in various sections of Pennsylvania stations at which new applicants for licenses to operate motor vehicles may be examined. The act of 1923 provides that after January 1st persons applying for drivers' licenses must be examined as to their fitness, their ability to operate a motor vehicle and their knowledge of the laws of Pennsylvania and rules of the road.

"The law requiring that a person who has not held a Pennsylvania operator's license must be examined," said Paul D. Wright, Secretary of Highways, today, "will require that applicants be not compelled to travel to Harrisburg to undergo this examination. Therefore, a number of stations will be established throughout the state—perhaps one in each county, at stated times examinations of applicants will be held by members of the Department's Motor Patrol. The examination will consist of an actual demonstration of the applicant's ability to handle a motor car and his knowledge of the mechanics of that car, coupled with an inquiry as to what he knows of the rules of the road and the state laws."

"Prospective drivers who make application for examination will be issued a learner's permit, good for thirty days, during which period he will be given his examination. If he passes this examination he will secure an operator's license. If he fails to pass, he will be given another opportunity later on, and in the meantime his learner's permit will be continued. This, however, will not be good for any considerable length of time."

As already stated, persons now holding a license to operate a machine will be entitled to a 1924 operator's license without an examination, but they must answer a series of twenty questions, calculated to show the Department that they are capable and fit.

FARMERS TURN TO A STUDY OF HOME MARKET DEMANDS

State College, Pa., Nov. 20.—Are the farmers of Pennsylvania producing the foodstuffs that meet the demand of the local consumer?

The answer to this question for at least one community is found in a survey conducted recently by the Blair County Farm Bureau, the Pennsylvania State College, the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Markets and the United States Department of Agriculture. The study was made at Altoona and included complete data on the products consumed by the city population and the production figures of the surrounding territory.

The survey shows that the farmers of Blair county produced last year only a small percentage of the potatoes, eggs and dressed poultry used in the Altoona consuming district. That farmers of this locality have advantages over producers in remote districts in supplying these products is the opinion of the economists making the survey. They point out as an example that the freight rates on potatoes favor the home producer by from 15 to 40 cents a bushel.

"The evidence revealed in this survey should not the farmers of every community in Pennsylvania thinking along these lines," declares H. C. Nicolson, extension specialist in agricultural economics at State College. "The adjusting of local production to the demands of the consumer is one means of increasing the returns to the farmer and cutting the food costs to the consumer."

Nicolson urges every farmer to study his markets and try to raise those crops for which there seems to be the greatest local demand.

Harrisburg, Nov. 20.—Attention of applicants for automobile registration is called by the Department of Highways to the following facts: All operators of motor vehicles whether owners or not must have operator's licenses. This is a provision of the act of 1923. Drivers' licenses issued for 1923 will be good until March 1, 1924, but 1924 licenses will not be good after midnight December 31.

Application for the separate driver's license can be made after Jan. 1, 1924, when these blanks may be had of the Highway Department or any justice of the peace, auditor or notary public in Pennsylvania. Holders of 1923 licenses need not make an affidavit in forwarding their application for a 1924 license, hence they need pay no material fee. The price fixed by the legislature for a driver's license is $1.

Applicants for licenses who add for both 1923 and 1924 licenses should send separate checks. Failure to do this will delay issuance of the 1924 license tags because the checks must be returned.

The State Highway department is now mailing 1924 license plates. These plates are numbered above 100,000, or 100,000 higher than the time last year.

The new title law which provides that no motor vehicle without a title be deemed effective Nov. 24. No motor vehicle will be given 1924 license tags unless the owner has a title for his vehicle. Every holder of a 1923 license has received the blank on which he should apply for title registration. On the reverse of this form is an application for 1924 tags. Both should be signed by the applicant.

"The most important thing to remember," said Registrar Elyson of the Automobile Division today, "is that while 1923 drivers' licenses are valid until March 1, 1924, a motor vehicle may be operated in Pennsylvania after December 31, unless it has 1924 plates."

The first failure to register is a fine from $50 to $1,000.

SLIGHT FIRE AT NORRIS CLEANING ROOM YESTERDAY

The dry-cleaning establishment of T. J. Norris, located in rear of his residence on Cherry street, was the scene of a spectacular fire shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Norris' father, Orl J. Norris, who had been absent from town on a business trip, was at work in the place when the cleaning fluid let go.

There was a tub or barrel of kerosene of the cleaning fluid was poured and being used by Mr. Norris, which T. J. Norris says was caused through friction caused by rubbing a piece of foulard silk. The fluid said to have been non-combustible, but it let go regardless of the label on the barrel. When the flame came the flames enveloped Mr. Norris, who was saved from more serious injury because of his wearing a heavy woolen sweater. As it was his left hand and arm were quite severely burned.

The firemen quickly responded to the call for their assistance and by the use of a chemical extinguisher had the fire extinguished, saving the building from destruction. The extent of the loss could not be estimated by Mr. Norris this morning and a confirmed principally to the clothing in the place in process of being cleaned.

Joe Littman left today for Philadelphia and New York. He is accompanied by his son, who will later the winter with his grandparents in Atlantic City.

legislation somewhat on the other side in Massachusetts, and nationally in attempting to protect women from possible imposition, somewhat as was suggested by one of the ladies, of prohibiting their employment in certain vocations that were supposed to be beyond their physical endurance. But if the womanhood of the Nation wants that changed, and you demonstrate your ability, your capacity and your strength, I haven't the slightest doubt the Congress will respond favorably.

In presenting their plea to the President the women point out that two years' investigation by their lawyers and the laws of various states showed women were subject to the following inequalities:

- Unequal control of their children.
- Unequal control of their property.
- Unequal control of their earnings.
- Unequal right to make contracts.
- Unequal citizenship rights.
- Unequal inheritance rights.
- Unequal control of national, state and local governments.

Unequal opportunities in schools and universities.

Unequal opportunities in government service.

Unequal opportunities in professions and industries.

Unequal pay for equal work.

Unequal authority in the church.

Unequal rights after marriage regarding their own identity.

Unequal moral standards.

Want Rights Made Permanent.

Miss Maud Younger, congressional chairman of the party, said:

"In favor of a Federal amendment, we urge:

"First. Permanence, that women may keep what they win. In Virginia, for instance, in 1916, women won equal guardianship of their children, and then, in 1919, it was taken away from them.

"Second. The saving of time, money and strength of women, which would be exhausted to a far greater degree in forty-eight separate state campaigns over many separate points, rather than in one broad sweeping campaign for a Federal amendment.

"Third. The greater difficulty of winning a state campaign, where the fight centers are around each petty point, with its personal angle, rather than around a broad fundamental principle embodied in a Federal amendment.

"Fourth. The United States Constitution is the place where all fundamental principles should be. It is the supreme law of the land and is all-inclusive and with one stroke would wipe out not only the present inequalities, but would prevent new ones from being made.

ODDS AND ENDS

By J. D. C.

Rev. Theodore Beck, of Williamsport, known as the "Fighting Chaplain," has the distinction of being the first man to run for public office in the Lycoming county, nominated and elected on all four tickets—Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Socialist. Rev. Beck served in France with the Eighty-fourth Division. He was wounded twice and gassed. Entering the contest for prothonotary of Lycoming county, he did most of his campaigning on a bicycle. The people of the county nominated him by a large majority on all tickets. Having no opposition at the election, he was given a large complimentary vote, more than 90 per cent of the people casting their ballots for him.

In speaking of the four amendments to the State Constitution and how they fared at the recent election, the Harrisburg Patriot of Monday says:

Dauphin County filed its official return of the November election with the State Bureau of Elections Saturday. It was the fiftieth county in the state to record its returns.

The figures of the remaining seven counties will decide the fate of the Constitutional Amendment to authorize reduce fares or free passes to clergymen. The first fifty counties have returned a majority against the amendment, but Philadelphia's vote is not included in the fifty reporting. Orders were issued in Philadelphia in favor of all amendments, and as the lead against the passes is not more than 10,000, it is thought Philadelphia's vote may make the amendment sure of passage.

The other three amendments passed without difficulty, the largest affirmative vote being given the $50,000,000 bond issue.

The vote in the fifty counties on the contest for Judge of Superior Court was: Henderson, Republican, 442,989; McAvoy, Democrat, 206,999, and Nelson, Socialist, 17,484.

Doctors throughout the United States were called upon to issue more than eleven million prescriptions for "pills" during the year just closed. All were issued for medical purposes, too. Such a sickness.

While manufacturers, chemists and almost everybody else is working on some formula to supplant alcohol as a preventive of freezing in radiators of automobiles, it remained for the Lehigh Valley Bee Keepers' Association to step in at a recent meeting and announce that honey will soon eliminate alcohol for this use. Extensive experiments have been quickly made by the bee keepers. They say money in proper quantities will prevent freezing even in the most extreme weather. Its use is declared to be economical. The bee keepers have organized a corporation to carry forward the marketing.

Women under twenty-five are more intelligent than men of the same age. After the twenty-fifth year men gradually pass women and attain a higher mental efficiency, according to statistics compiled in the administrative and educational departments of the University of Arizona.

Prof. Alva O. Neal, university registrar and professor of rural education, is the fellow who compiled the figures. He says a fourteen-year-old high school girl is the mental equal of a boy of sixteen. Prof. Neal attributes this to the longer period of infancy in men. Women mature more rapidly, he points out, but when men become developed completely they learn it by the increased preparation of the long adolescence.

The university cites its local statistics to show that the average scholar standing for women students was considerably above the general university average. The standings were: General average, 1.68 per cent; women, 1.75 per cent, 1.60.

REVIVAL MEETINGS CONTINUE
ANOTHER WEEK

The special gospel services which have been conducted by the Baum evangelistic party at the Susquehanna College of Music will continue another week or until next Sunday night. Last Sunday a Sunday School to be known as the Church of Christ Sunday School was organized with a good attendance and lots of interest. On Sunday afternoon the party addressed nearly 400 people at the Strand Theatre at Curwensville and on Sunday night Evangelist Baum spoke on the subject of the second coming of Christ to a capacity crowd at Driggs theater. Many who heard it say that the sermon was the best ever delivered in the present campaign and it is anticipated that large audiences will want to hear the evangelists in their last week of services here. Mr. Arnold will sing each night. Song service begins at 7:30.

COMMUNITY THANKSGIVING
SERVICE

This year Clearfield Community observance of Thanksgiving, which is fixed by President Coolidge's proclamation for Thursday, Nov. 29, will be held in the First Presbyterian church. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. E. C. Reeve, responding to requests of numerous people, and the approval of the pastors of the local churches, sets the hour for 6 a. m. The service will continue only one hour, consisting of praise, prayer and a suitable address by the Rev. W. L. Cruthers of the Baptist Church. The objects to which the offerings of Thanksgiving will be devoted are the Home for Children and the Hospital. The full details of the service which will be of exceptional character in the various exercises, will be published in The Progress next week upon the return of Dr. Reeve, who expects to occupy his pulpit this coming Sunday.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lousy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "pick up" the spirits. 45c and 30c.

Big Uphear in Toytown
Hundreds of Toys Vie
With Each Other for Attention of Youngsters

There was a great uproar in our Toytown as soon as we opened. Between the enthusiastic squeals of the kiddies as they reached each group of Toys or peeped into the room entirely set off for the Dollies, and the noise of the Mechanical Toys, all working for the delight of the kiddies, our Toytown was a bedlam of sounds. Such happy sounds as they were! Jack wanted to see the wheels go 'round and when they went 'round, he squealed for joy. Mary wanted to get into the room full of Dollies and her little heart went out to the vast array of little "Susies" and "Blossoms" that needed mothering.

And all this is yet here. You may see the kiddies in often as you like. There is too much to really see everything in one trip. There will be plenty of courteous salespeople to explain everything for you and to lay things away if you want them.

Progress Editorial For Women

HER NEIGHBOR'S GOWN

By FLORENCE DAVIES

The wife of the president of the United States, so the papers say, has completed her fall shopping. That's an interesting item in itself, since the clothes worn by the first lady of any land always have a certain fascination for women in any corner of the globe.

In this particular case, the papers state that Mrs. Coolidge is not only all ready for any emergency, with everything complete, from hats to hosiery (what a blessed relief, if any of us could be sure of that) but that she has turned her back on Paris labels and chosen made-in-America garments.

Some of the papers rather infer that Mrs. Coolidge made this choice from patriotic motives. But she herself, would be the first to laugh at such a conclusion. Doubtless she would have been perfectly equal to the sacrifice if buying American-made clothes were only an act of patriotism, and not a pleasant thing to do. But the fact is, that there's no self sacrifice about that process at all. For America has learned to make the smartest clothes in the world. A Paris label is a pretty tradition. But while the individual Paris dress-makers continue to turn out lovely creations, the American manufacturer has come nearer to expressing the American type, not only in the lines of his garments but in that indescribable element which is a little more than style. American clothes have a kind of "snap", which more than offsets what the French refer to as "chic."

But while Mrs. Coolidge deserves no great credit for not seeking Paris labels she has carried her Americanism to a greater length in another direction, than any other woman in her position. She has accepted the fact that she lives in an industrial country, a country which has committed itself to factory processes, a country which has gone in for quantity production, and like it or not, right or wrong, she can not turn back the clock. Therefore she said to the firm of which she bought her outfit that she would not demand that her gowns should be exclusive models. In some cases she was informed that the dress she had chosen was duplicated.

"That," said Mrs. Coolidge "makes no difference. I will take the dress anyhow."

Probably this is the first time in the history of the world that the wife of the chief executive of one of the first powers has consented to wear a dress which might be duplicated by an ordinary citizen in the next block.

The world moves, and it's evident that Mrs. Coolidge, for one, moves with it.

She recognizes that the factory system has come to stay. She knows that the highest priced designers in the land have been employed to create the models. She chooses one that pleases her and gives her sister in the next town or next street the privilege of doing the same. And by so doing, without losing her sense of fitness, or fineness, she proclaims herself truly democratic and truly American.

VEGETABLE TEA FOR CONSTIPATION

Thousands of Families Brew It At Home and Keep Well

Sick headache, nervousness, low skin and drowsiness are nearly always caused by constipation and can easily be conquered by the use of Dr. Carter's Little Blue Pills.

Dr. Carter's Little Blue Pills are so gentle and so effective that you can take them at any time and in any place. They are so gentle that they can be taken by the most delicate of constitutions.

A 30-cent package will last a long time and any druggist will tell you that he has been selling it for years and that many people swear by it. Drink it for inactive liver and clogged up bowels. You'll like it.

Be more purely vegetable and gentle in action. It is fine for children and nearly all of them like it.

Curwensville's Own Column

Cecil A. Ardy is home for a short stay from Ohio, where he has been employed for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Hile of Pike township and Mrs. Venie Miller, this place, attended the state and national Grange convention in Pittsburgh. They also visited relatives while in the city.

Miss Paula Ardy, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Ardy, North Liberty street, was home from her school over the week-end. Monday she went to Lock Haven to attend a state of the week. The week following she will return to West Point to begin her occupation as a school teacher.

John Roseman, a former Curwensville resident, now of Bald Eagle where he is engaged in conducting a road house, came over Saturday and spent a few days in town with old friends.

Howard Thompson went over the mountain yesterday to Bellefonte to round up and make consignment of some of his business interests in that town. He is expected to return to the town to see to it that his business interests in that town are properly handled.

Mrs. W. O. Mason and Mrs. Beavers both of Warren, are guests at the Park House. The husbands of both ladies are interested in the construction of the big steel bridge that crosses Anderson Creek near Bridgeport, and are the two sections of the state highway.

John Hudson is carrying his right arm in a sling, all because he attempted to do a job of work Monday morning. The crank aligned and struck him on the wrist, breaking a bone.

Harry J. Mason is home for a visit after a railroad run in North and South Carolina for several months.

Frank J. Mason and son John and daughter Mrs. P. J. Mason, came down from the city on Sunday having spent the day here by the death of Mrs. Newton Freeman.

Mrs. Newton J. Freeman residing near Curwensville died very suddenly Saturday morning. She was 70 years of age. Her husband, Mr. Newton Freeman, died several years ago. MRS. BUTLER'S ACHES AND PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

W. Philadelphia, Pa. "When I cleaned house last April I must have overfilled for after that I had pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged. I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from the store nor walk four or five blocks without getting terrible pains in my back and abdomen and lower limbs. I went to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My husband said that if it did but so much good for the same trouble, I should try it. So I have taken it and it is doing me good. Whenever I feel heavy or bad, it puts me right on my feet again. I am able to do my work with pleasure and am getting strong and stout. I still take the Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash." Mrs. CHARLES BUTLER, 1228 N. Hanson St., W. Philadelphia, Pa.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lowell, Mass., for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text Book upon "Ailments of Women."

Murray G., sixteen-year-old son of James F. and Eliza Peter, Lucas, died at the home of his parents of pneumonia a Monday forenoon after a short illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

James Stauffer, of Burnside, was a Saturday evening visitor to Curwensville.

Today the American Legion post had a large card put into every school room in the three public school buildings, showing diagram pictures of the American flag, how to display it and how to respect it. Also a group of members of the Legion visited the schools and gave demonstrations. It is the intention of the Legion to have these cards distributed in every country school house in the county. The instructing of the use of the flag on all occasions is a good study in the public schools of this borough as well as in schools in Clearfield County.

The degree team of Bethesda Lodge Odd Fellows were at Lumber City Saturday night and conferred the degree work on several candidates for membership in that lodge. The men who compose this team are gaining a reputation in this county for the impressive and up-to-date manner of working the degrees of the order.

Mrs. M. J. Kelly and her sister, Miss Jean Smith, left Curwensville last Friday for Altoona, where they will stay until about the first of the new year, when they will journey to Florida and spend the winter. Mrs. Kelly has sold the home on West State street and also disposed of her household goods, which practically means that she will no more reside in Curwensville as her home. The many friends of these two ladies have no doubt but the best of wishes for their future happiness.

Mrs. D. P. Wall was entertained at her home on East George street last Friday evening by a number of her friends gathering who gave her a surprise by forcibly entering her domain. Those who conspired and participated in the event were heartily entertained for several hours by the hostess.

Samuel Raves, residing over in Centerville, was a caller at the home of Mrs. Isaac Kester the latter part of last week. He was on his way to Gramplan to attend a Friends quarterly meeting. He was surprised when he arrived here and learned of Friend Isaac Kester's death.

Some scoundrel entered the home of Reuben Bilger one evening last week and rummaged his writing desk in quest of something or other. There were some valuable papers in the desk but they were not taken, although they were scattered about over the floor. Mr. Bilger was upstairs in bed and did not hear the intruder.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran means to your family's health?

Eaten regularly each day, Kellogg's Bran will permanently relieve constipation; it will free you from dangerous toxic poisons that lead to 30% of all human illness; it will remove the cause and create a bad breath; it will clear a pimply complexion through its work on the bowels. In fact, Kellogg's Bran, through its natural action as a bulk, indigestible agent, will tone-up the whole system!

If you know exactly what constipation means from a medical viewpoint, you would lose no time eating Kellogg's Bran yourself and serving it daily to your family. And, Kellogg's is actually delicious, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of eating cereals. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; in chronic cases, with each meal.

There are many attractive ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it in winter with hot milk as a cereal. Or, mix it with cereals before serving. Many housewives cook it with cereals, in each case adding two tablespoonfuls for each person. You will also enjoy the nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran when it has been sprinkled over hot or cold cereals.

You have missed some of the joys of life if you have not eaten raisin bread, muffins, griddle-cakes, etc., made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each box.

Don't delay your fight against constipation; don't lose a minute in the great battle against illness! You can buy Kellogg's Bran from all grocers and you can have it served in individual packages at first-class hotels, restaurants and clubs.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING POLLOCK

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Chas. Jewett, in love with the beautiful girl, Daniel Gilchrist, married her. Goodkind for his money, Jewett is dismissed from the fashionable Church of the Nativity in New York because of his radical views.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"That's the very time to go on," he answered earnestly. "If we stop now because it doesn't work, that isn't fair."

"No, I agree," she said.

"And faith moves mountains," he continued. He paused a moment, looking at her beseechingly. "Once upon a time," he said simply, "there was a woman who'd been sick 12 years."

"What was the matter with her?" queried the girl, interested.

"I don't know. But there was a man in that city who said he could cure her."

"And everybody laughed at him—as they would today. But the woman didn't laugh, and one morning when he was passing her house she got up and followed him—just to touch the hem of his cloak. And what do you think?"

"I suppose," the girl said eagerly, leaning forward.

"The man cured," said Daniel.

"And the man said—"

"I know," she interrupted. "The man had made the whole."

"That's right," he smiled.

"Could God do that for me?" she asked earnestly.

"Yes," he said with conviction.

"It would be an awful big favor."

"But if he doesn't," Gilchrist put in, "you must go on. If faith doesn't cure her, it helps us to bear them. And that's the same thing, isn't it?"

"Yes," she said with a trace of doubting doubt.

"The believing you're Cinderella," he added.

"Yes," she said and smiled a bit.

"We can't decide what we want and then be angry and doubtful because it doesn't happen our way. We continue to believe all the time it's happening. We say the only thing we can be sure of is that it's happening."

"That's right," she nodded. "You mean, if God wants me to be well, some day he'll make me well?"

"If you believe hard enough," he declared.

"And if he doesn't?"

"Then that's right—if you believe hard enough, he'll make me well."

The girl paused a moment reflectively. She could not forget her husband's words. They were real. Every step she took upon the sun-drenched crutches was a reminder of them. But she was eager to know what this man told her. She didn't understand why. Doubt and uncertainty were rising now and she put them down with inner resolve.

"I will, Mr. Gilchrist," she said determinedly. She rose and reached for her crutches. Then she looked down at the clock in front of him. "You can't touch my supper," she said with conviction.

"I've had plenty," he replied, getting up slowly with the satisfaction of one who had had "meat to eat that he knew not of."

"I'll send a waiter up for the tray," she said and she left.

Gilchrist walked to the window, looked out a moment and then started to draw the shade.

The door swung open hurriedly

and Pearl Henning, with a look of fright in her eyes, shouted to him excitedly.

"Mr. Gilchrist, don't stand by that window!"

Daniel looked at her a moment and then, with that strange tranquility that was his, turned and calmly drew down the shade.

CHAPTER XVIII

The Warning

ALMOST trembling under the nervous tension of alarm, Pearl Henning watched Gilchrist, as in calm deliberation, he turned to the other window, peered out inquisitively, then drew its shade and walked calmly toward her.

"Hello, Pearl," he said, surveying a flashily dressed girl of 25, dark, pretty, almost delicate. "How well you're looking! The room is warm."

"What's the matter with the window?"

"It isn't safe," she said in a hoarse whisper.

Gilchrist smiled.

"Are you going to advise me to carry a pistol, too?" he asked.

"No, just keep out of the sight of—"

"Of whom?" he inquired.

"Joe Henning," she said sharply.

"I thought Joe was in Black River."

"He isn't, though," she answered, still very nervous. "I told you he was ashamed to go home. I told you he was gonna stay here and get you."

"Well," queried Daniel.

"Well—he stayed. I went to him—like I told you—and said it wasn't you—and said to take me back. And he said I was a liar and he was gonna get you. I told you all that."

"Yes, I guess you did."

"While he was workin' uptown I didn't hear nothin' about him," the girl continued. "But a little while ago he lost his job and began hangin' around down here. He's been drinkin' and talkin' wild, and I come in to tell you."

"That's kind of you, Pearl, but I'm not afraid of Joe," he reassured her.

"I am," she said, seriously. "He's got his gang. I know." There was an emphatic accent on the last word.

"How do you know?" asked Daniel.

She hesitated a moment, embarrassed.

"Well," she said, finally, "last night I met up with one of his pals—and he'd been drinkin' and he said Joe said you was livin' on women and this place was a blind, and nobody's wife was safe while you was in the neighborhood. And this man said they was gonna get together and drive you out." She gestured hysterically. "They're dangerous. Mr. Gilchrist. For God's sake, believe me! For God's sake, telephone the police!"

"There's no telephone here, Pearl," he said evasively. "But there's always an officer at hand, and I'm among friends. Don't worry. Sit down and wait for the police. I haven't seen you in ages."

She did not need his invitation, but continued to pace the floor nervously.

"Two weeks," she corrected.

"What are you doing?"

"I'm workin' at Baylin's department store," she said, uneasily.

"Like it?"

"Better than bein' with Joe."

"There was danger in her answer."

"If you'd stayed with Joe," he said, with just the shadow of reproach, "maybe he wouldn't be drinkin'."

"He always did," she flashed back.

"That's why I asked you to stick around in Black River. That's one reason I quit."

"One reason?" he looked at her inquiringly.

"They was others," she admitted, a bit grudgingly. "I wanted good clothes and a good time—just like other women."

"Yes," he said, seriously, looking back into his own heart—"like other women."

Pearl straightened up with an air of pride.

"And I've got 'em," she declared, waving boastfully at her costume.

"Yes, you've got them," said Gilchrist gravely. "But don't you think—sometimes—you and the other women—that they cost too much?"

"I don't get you," she looked at him quizzically.

"I only mean," he started, "that there's something worth more than good clothes and a good time?" He wasn't sure she understood. And neither was she. "A good home," he went on, "with love in it—and little children."

Pearl hesitated a moment, pulling nervously at a sleeve as she turned her back on the question. As had been her custom when she faced unpleasant things, she ran from it. She hurried to the window and with a cat-like approach drew the shade aside just a trifle.

"We hadn't ought to be here talkin'," she flung back over her shoulder as she peeped out the narrow slit. She was trying to establish some basis for her flight from his question.

"Why not?" he asked blandly.

"I'm frightened of Joe," she said.

"You needn't be," he reassured again.

She came back now, relieved that she had turned the conversation.

"I can't help it. I got a hunch. I told you all this man said and I ain't told you how he come to me."

But he said it was gonna be soon, and I got a hunch something's gonna happen tonight. Please let me go out and phone. Please let me get the police."

She watched him shake his head smilingly. Then she straightened. "You're crazy, Mr. Gilchrist," she exclaimed excitedly. "You're just crazy. And I'm goin'."

She hurried toward the door. It opened before she reached it and Clara Goodkind entered. She was smartly gowned, but somehow she gave the impression of being disheveled, of having dressed in haste.

"Clara—Mrs. Goodkind," said Gilchrist in surprise. He paused and looked at Pearl. "Mrs. Henning's just going."

"Mrs. Henning?" Clara looked with tired eyes and turned to the uneasy girl in front of her.

"Pearl Henning," Gilchrist exclaimed. "You've heard your husband mention her name."

Pearl had been searching for something to say. The mention of Jerry offered an opportunity.

"I know your husband," she said simply.

CONFERENCE NEWS

Unsettled discussion in the board of directors of the Clearfield Conference, as a result of the protest of game between Huntingdon and Lock Haven, Nov. 3, when Huntingdon lost. Several Under players, when Under failed to take out protested players. Huntingdon protested the game with two illegal players in the lineup. Huntingdon complained of actions of the referee and referee. Huntingdon is to lodge the protest at the meeting of conference officials. Keep Under from gaining the game and are in favor of giving the game to Lock Haven High. Huntingdon is making a protest for poor treatment from fans would be like a snake biting himself, as the treatment handed out to the local gridders during the stay in Huntingdon and throughout a game was about the worst ever and to a Clearfield team visiting Huntington.

Lock Haven High's powerful grid machine overwhelmed Johnstown, 46-7 at Johnstown Saturday. The score does not quite show the type of game played as Lock Haven had numerous second string men while the playing of the entire Lock Haven eleven featured.

For the first time in several years the Huntington team was allowed to win. Huntington when Conemaugh defeated Huntington 12-6 Saturday. In the game a Conemaugh player tackled Courin, Huntington's halfback, after catching a pass and Courin became enraged. He attempted to hit the Conemaugh player and was sent from the game. The fans started a rush for the referee to "throw him in the river," as they said, but police prevented further trouble.

Windsor with a somewhat changed backfield scored a 25-0 victory over Hollidaysburg High Saturday. Hagan Windsor's captain and star quarter back, featured the miners' attack.

The local high school second team posed out Patton High eleven here Saturday morning by the score 7-6. Coach Steele's proteges showed good form and were constantly threatening the Patton goal.

JORDAN'S

UP SHE GOES

A musically worth-while and distinctly enjoyable play is "Up She Goes" which William A. Brady brings from a year's successful run at the Playhouse, New York, to the Driggs Theatre for an engagement of one night Monday, November 26th.

The place is saturated with mirth, clever lines and dainty melodies. Three well-known authors are responsible for the tremendous success which this piece enjoyed in New York and elsewhere. They are Frank Craven, Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy. To Mr. Craven we owe the book of "Up She Goes." This well-known playwright and actor will be remembered as the author of "The First Year." To Messrs. Tierney and McCarthy we owe the music and lyrics respectively of "Up She Goes." These young composers will be remembered by their collaboration on the score of the famous "Irene." Given these prominent three with their finger in the pie, together with the exquisite production provided by Mr. Brady the play was bound to be a success. It only remains for you to see for yourself, and judge its merits.

Domestic happiness is the end of most all our pursuits, and the most reward of all our pains. We most find ourselves forever torn from this delightful fruition, thus lost to all industry and grow weary of all their earthly affairs. BAD AUTO SMASH-UP NEAR ALLPORT, PA., SUNDAY AFTERNOON

According to the Phillipsburg Journal, Allport, Morris township, was the scene of a rather serious automobile collision Sunday afternoon, about 2:30, when five persons were injured and both cars smashed up, the occupants of one of the cars being Mr. and Mrs. William Sles, of Spruce street, here and visiting relatives.

Mr. Sles, his wife and the latter's sister, Mrs. James Holter, and Mrs. Holter's daughter, Mrs. Albert Long, and little son, Frank W. Long, who have been visiting at the Sles home, started out for a drive to the Kylenburg and Grant, Pa. region in Mr. Sles's Essex car. As they were passing through Allport, an Essex car driven at high speed came from the cross road. Mr. Sles ran into the gutter and broke down, a fence to avoid the impending collision, but it was of no avail, the Essex car, which the driver had seemingly lost control of, smashing into the Sles car with frightful force. The car was badly smashed up, and all the occupants except Mr. Sles thrown out by the terrific impact.

The Essex car, which was driven by Wesley Hoover of the Clearfield Rural Delivery route No. 5, turned completely over as it collided with the Dorris. Two persons with Hoover, Alex Beveridge and Wynne Hubler, were caught under the overturned car.

Scores of persons reached the scene quickly and rescued the injured. The Cottage State hospital ambulance was sent for and the seriously hurt taken to that institution.

Mrs. Holter has a fractured pelvis. Her daughter and little son, however, escaped injury. Mrs. Sles received a cut over the eye and is suffering from shock, but is up and around at her home. Mr. Sles, who was caught in the wrecked car, has a fractured breastbone, a couple of broken ribs and serious injuries to his hips. He is being cared for at his residence.

The driver of the Essex escaped injury, but the two men with him, Beveridge and Hubler, were taken to the hospital. Beveridge has a fracture of the clavicle and Hubler received head injuries. The latter was able to leave the hospital later. Both injured men live in the Summit Hill section of Clearfield county.

GOV. WALTON IS OUSTED AS OKLAHOMA EXECUTIVE BY UNANIMOUS BALLOT; ACQUITTED ON SOME OF CHARGES

Oklahoma City, Nov. 19.—Governor J. C. Walton was removed from office today by a unanimous vote of the State Senate court of impeachment on the first article of the impeachment bill submitted for its consideration.

The vote, which was on the charge that the executive had abused his pardon and parole authority, was 41 to 0 for conviction.

The verdict of guilty also was returned on article 2, charging the executive with placing his personal chauffeur on the state pay roll. Six senators voted for acquittal on this charge.

A member of Governor Walton's counsel, who re-entered the senate chamber when the roll call on the verdict was started, entered exceptions to the vote on both counts. The governor had not been represented since he withdrew Saturday.

Governor Walton was acquitted of a charge of corruption in connection with the purchase of his residence here. The vote was 23 to 18, which was less than two-thirds needed for conviction.

In rapid succession the court sustained the charges that the governor had padded the state pay rolls, dispersed a grand jury, suspended the habeas corpus, issued deficiency certificates when no deficiency existed, obstructed the October and special elections, collected excessive campaign funds and illegally sought contributions and gifts.

Interspersed with the conviction were acquittals on charges of bribery contained in Article 5, abrogated the death penalty and illegally made irresponsible persons state officers.

The executive was acquitted of Article 1, charging that he illegally appointed a member of the state legislature to a district judgeship.

A verdict of guilty was returned on the general incompetency charge. With the completion of the vote the record showed Governor Walton was found guilty of 11 of the 22 impeachment charges, originally presented against him.

He was acquitted of five and evidence on the remaining six never was presented by the prosecution.

The court's formal vote to remove the governor from office was unanimous.

The remaining six charges of impeachment, charging Governor Walton with offenses in connection with his declaration of martial law in the state, were dismissed by the court on motion of the prosecution.

Immediately afterward counsel for the executive filed application for a new trial. (This was denied by a standing vote of the court.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., NOV. 20.—

"The people of Oklahoma wanted Governor Walton removed. We carried out their mandate."

With this statement today the House Board of Managers, which prosecuted impeachment charges against Walton, answered his assertion that he had not received a fair trial.

"Jack" Walton, whose meteoric career reached its height in the war against the KuKlux Klan, was found guilty by the Senate on 11 of 6 impeachment articles and removed from office late Monday.

INDIAN PRINCESS FIRST TO OFFER SERVICES IN WAR

Princess Tsaniana, the famous Indian prima donna, who appears here shortly with Charles Wakefield Cadman, America's foremost composer, has the great honor of being the first girl west of the Mississippi to respond to the appeal of General Pershing for volunteers to entertain our boys "Over There."

She also has the distinctive honor of being the first American girl to sing on the Rhine after the armistice was signed. She went into Germany with the first American troops to cross the Rhine, and on Christmas morning 1918, she sang the famous German Christmas Carol "Holy Night" in the Kaiser's church at Coblenz; the occasion marked the one hundred anniversary of the song. At New Weid, Germany, on New Year's Day, 1919, she was officially adopted by the Second Division, Major General Le Jeune commanding. Since her return to this country, she has been made an active member of the American Legion, an honor conferred on very few women in the world.

For her work in England, France and Germany, she was cited and received letters of commendation from the various generals in command. On one of her most cherished possessions is a letter from Major General W. G. Haan, as follows: Headquarters Seventh Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, Germany, April 22, 1919. "Princess Tsaniana is commended for the excellent work she has accomplished in organizing an all-Indian unit from Indian soldiers of the Seventh Corps. She came here alone and for a considerable time entertained most attractively by herself. Through her reports come of the excellent entertainments she has given, and this is not only from heresy; but the undersigned personally has observed the work of this young lady. She is the true American girl in Europe, and is a real princess by her work and her American girl whom we have learned to love and respect for her excellent character and for her excellent work." Signed, W. G. Haan, Major General, U. S. A.

PICKELNY CHILD FOUND DEAD IN MUSTY CELLAR

New York, Nov. 20.—The body of a five-year-old boy, found at 10:30 a. m. today in a rank, musty cellar of an old house in the poorest section of New York was positively identified as that of Irving Pickelny. Irving disappeared from his home October 26th.

Identification was made through the boy's clothing. The body was so badly decomposed care had to be used in handling it.

It is thought to have lain in the cellar for two months.

Odors from the cellar first attracted passersby, who notified the police. The Pickelny boy was kidnapped apparently, by a maniac, police said, and was murdered when search for the child made keeping him any longer dangerous. Hunt has been under way for weeks. Extensive rewards for his recovery were offered.

CELEBRATED KIDNAPPING CASE COMES TO A GROW- SOME END WITH POSITIVE IDENTIFICATION TODAY.

One of the saddest hunting accidents in years occurred near Heilwood Saturday morning when the gun carried by Giacomo Bruno, aged 20 years, was accidentally discharged, the charge entering the face and breast of his brother, Gaisoppo Bruno, aged 18 years, causing almost instant death, says the Indiana Gazette.

During the progress of the morning the brothers were standing about four rods apart. Bringing his gun into position quickly to get a rabbit, the weapon was accidentally discharged, and Giacomo was horrified to see his brother clutch his hands to his chest and fall motionless to the ground. Assistance was rendered at once, but death came within a few minutes.

The Bruno boys were among the most popular youths of Heilwood and the tragic ending of their day's sport has cast a pall of gloom over the community.

WHAT YOU WANT TO KNOW ABOUT THE NEW LAWS ON MOTOR DRIVER LICENSES; READ THIS AND AVOID HEAVY PENALTIES

State Will Hold Exams All Operators of Cars,
For Drivers In Many Even Though Owners,
Parts of The State Must Have Licenses

Harrisburg, Nov. 20.—The State Highway Department has announced that after January 1st it will establish in various sections of Pennsylvania stations at which new applicants for licenses to operate motor vehicles may be examined. The act of 1923 provides that after January 1st persons applying for drivers' licenses must be examined as to their fitness, their ability to operate a motor vehicle and their knowledge of the laws of Pennsylvania and rules of the road.

"The law requiring that a person who has not held a Pennsylvania operator's license must be examined," said Paul D. Wright, Secretary of Highways, today, "will require that applicants be not compelled to travel to Harrisburg to undergo this examination. Therefore, a number of stations will be established throughout the state—perhaps one in each county, at stated times examinations of applicants will be held by members of the Department's Motor Patrol. The examination will consist of an actual demonstration of the applicant's ability to handle a motor car and his knowledge of the mechanics of that car, coupled with an inquiry as to what he knows of the rules of the road and the state laws.

"Prospective drivers who make application for examination will be issued a learner's permit, good for thirty days, during which period he will be given his examination. If he passes this examination he will secure an operator's license. If he fails to pass, he will be given another opportunity later on, and in the meantime his learner's permit will be continued. This, however, will not be good for any considerable length of time."

As already stated, persons now holding a license to operate a machine will be entitled to a 1924 operator's license without an examination, but they must answer a series of twenty questions, calculated to show the Department that they are capable and fit.

Harrisburg, Nov. 20.—Attention of applicants for automobile registration is called by the Department of Highways to the following facts: All operators of motor vehicles whether owners or not must have operator's licenses. This is a provision of the act of 1923. Drivers' licenses issued for 1923 will be good until March 1, 1924, but 1924 licenses will not be good after midnight December 31.

Application for the separate driver's license can be made after Jan. 1, 1924, when these blanks may be had of the Highway Department or any Justice of the peace, auditor or notary public in Pennsylvania. Holders of 1923 licenses need not make an affidavit in forwarding their application for a 1924 license, hence they need pay no material fee. The price fixed by the legislature for a driver's license is $1.

Applicants for licenses who add for both 1923 and 1924 licenses should send separate checks. Failure to do this will delay issuance of the 1924 license tags because the checks must be returned.

The State Highway department is now mailing 1924 license plates. These plates are numbered above 100,000, or 100,000 higher than the time last year.

The new title law which provides that no motor vehicle without a title be licensed effective Nov. 24. No motor vehicle will be given 1924 license tags unless the owner has a title for the vehicle. Every holder of a 1923 license has received the blank on which he should apply for title registration. On the reverse of this form is an application for 1924 tags. Both should be signed by the applicant.

"The most important thing to remember," said Registrar Elyson of the Automobile Division today, "is that while 1923 drivers' licenses are valid until March 1, 1924, a motor vehicle may be operated in Pennsylvania after December 31, unless it has 1924 plates."

The first failure to register a car ranges from $50 to $1,000.

The dry-cleaning establishment of T. J. Norris, located in rear of his residence on Cherry street, was the scene of a spectacular fire shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Norris' father, Orl J. Norris, who had been visiting his son during the latter's absence from town on a business trip, was at work in the place when the cleaning fluid let go.

There was a tub or barrel of cleaning fluid in the place, which was being used by Mr. Norris, which T. J. Norris says was ignited through friction caused by rubbing a piece of foulard silk. The fluid said to have been non-combustible, but it let go regardless of the label on the barrel. When the flame came the flames enveloped Mr. Norris, who was saved from more serious injury because of his wearing a heavy woolen sweater. As it was his left hand and arm were quite severely burned.

The firemen quickly responded to the call for their assistance and by the use of a stream of chemicals saved the building from destruction.

The extent of the loss could not be estimated by Mr. Norris this morning, and a confirmed principally to the clothing in the place in process of being cleaned.

COOLIDGE TELLS

legislation somewhat on the other side in Massachusetts, and nationally in attempting to protect women from possible imposition, somewhat as was suggested by one of the ladies, of prohibiting their employment in certain vocations that were supposed to be beyond their physical endurance. But if the womanhood of the Nation wants that changed, and you demonstrate your ability, your capacity and your strength, I haven't the slightest doubt the Congress will respond favorably.

In presenting their plea to the President the women point out that two years' investigation by their lawyers and the laws of various states showed women were subject to the following inequalities:

Unequal control of their children.
Unequal control of their property.
Unequal control of their earnings.
Unequal right to make contracts.
Unequal citizenship rights.
Unequal inheritance rights.
Unequal control of national, state

and local governments.

Unequal opportunities in schools and universities.

Unequal opportunities in government service.

Unequal opportunities in professions and industries.

Unequal pay for equal work.

Unequal authority in the church.

Unequal rights after marriage regarding their own identity.

Unequal moral standards.

Want Rights Made Permanent.

Miss Maud Younger, congressional chairman of the party, said:

"In favor of a Federal amendment, we urge:

"First. Permanence, that women may keep what they win. In Virginia, for instance, in 1916, women won equal guardianship of their children, and then, in 1919, it was taken away from them.

"Second. The saving of time, money and strength of women, which would be exhausted to a far greater degree in forty-eight separate state campaigns over many separate points, rather than in one broad sweeping campaign for a Federal amendment.

"Third. The greater difficulty of winning a state campaign, where the fight centers are around each petty point, with its personal angle, rather than around a broad fundamental principle embodied in a Federal amendment.

"Fourth. The United States Constitution is the place where all fundamental principles should be. It is the supreme law of the land and is all-inclusive and with one stroke would wipe out not only the present inequalities, but would prevent new ones from being made.

The little fellow would have been a year old on Thursday next. He is survived by his parents and one brother. The parents

Test This Out For Yourself—

MANY people who drink coffee regularly are troubled with insomnia; or they feel nervous, "head-achy," or suffer from indigestion.

It may be hard for such men and women to believe that coffee is responsible for the way they feel. Because they have always drunk coffee, it hardly seems possible that this old habit could cause trouble.

But there is one sure way to find out whether coffee is harming you. Just stop its use for a week or so, and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine, the drug in coffee, which disturbs the health and comfort of many.

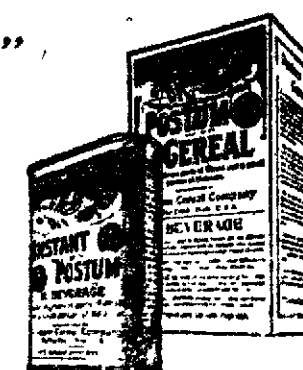

After a week or two on Postum, you will sleep better and feel better; then your own good judgment should decide whether you go back to coffee or continue on the Road to Wellville with Postum.

Sold by grocers everywhere!

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in use) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

Rev. Theodore Beck, of Williamsport, known as the "Fighting Chaplain," has the distinction of being the first man to run for public office in the Lycoming county, nominated and elected on all four tickets—Republican, Democratic, Prohibition and Socialist. Rev. Beck served in France with the Eighty-fourth Division. He was wounded twice and gassed. Entering the contest for prothonotary of Lycoming county, he did most of his campaigning on a bicycle. The people of the county nominated him by a large majority on all tickets. Having no opposition at the election, he was given a large complimentary vote, more than 90 per cent of the people casting their ballots for him.

In speaking of the four amendments to the State Constitution and how they fared at the recent election, the Harrisburg Patriot of Monday says:

Dauphin County filed its official return of the November election with the State Bureau of Elections Saturday. It was the fiftieth county in the state to record its returns.

The figures of the remaining seven counties will decide the fate of the Constitutional Amendment to authorize reduce fares or free passes to clergymen. The first fifty counties have returned a majority against the amendment, but Philadelphia's vote is not included in the fifty reporting. Orders were issued in Philadelphia in favor of all amendments, and as the lead against the passes is not more than 10,000, it is thought Philadelphia's vote may make the amendment sure of passage.

The other three amendments passed without difficulty, the largest affirmative vote being given the $50,000,000 bond issue.

The vote in the fifty counties on the contest for Judge of Superior Court was: Henderson, Republican, 442,989; McAvoy, Democrat, 206,999, and Nelson, Socialist, 17,484.

Doctors throughout the United States were called upon to issue more than eleven million prescriptions for "pills" during the year just closed. All were issued for medical purposes, too. Such a sickness.

While manufacturers, chemists and almost everybody else is working on some formula to supplant alcohol as a preventive of freezing in radiators of automobiles, it remained for the Lehigh Valley Bee Keepers' Association to step in at a recent meeting and announce that honey will soon eliminate alcohol for this use. Extensive experiments have been quickly made by the bee keepers. They say money in proper quantities will prevent freezing even in the most extreme weather. Its use is declared to be economical. The bee keepers have organized a corporation to carry forward the marketing.

Women under twenty-five are more intelligent than men of the same age, but after the twenty-fifth year men gradually pass women and attain a higher mental efficiency, according to statistics compiled in the administrative and educational departments of the University of Arizona.

Prof. Alva O. Neal, university registrar and professor of rural education, is the fellow who compiled the figures. He says a fourteen-year-old high school girl is the mental equal of a boy of sixteen. Prof. Neal attributes this to the longer period of infancy in men. Women mature more rapidly, he points out, but when men become developed completely they learn it by the increased preparation of the long adolescence.

The university cites its local statistics to show that the average scholar standing for women students was considerably above the general university average. The standings were: General average, 1.68 per cent; women, 1.75 per cent, 1.60.

REVIVAL MEETINGS CONTINUE
ANOTHER WEEK

The special gospel services which have been conducted by the Baum evangelistic party at the Susquehanna College of Music will continue another week or until next Sunday night. Last Sunday a Sunday School to be known as the Church of Christ Sunday School was organized with a good attendance and lots of interest. On Sunday afternoon the party addressed nearly 400 people at the Strand Theatre at Curwensville and on Sunday night Evangelist Baum spoke on the subject of the second coming of Christ to a capacity crowd at Driggs theater. Many who heard it say that the sermon was the best ever delivered in the present campaign and it is anticipated that large audiences will want to hear the evangelists in their last week of services here. Mr. Arnold will sing each night. Song service begins at 7:30.

COMMUNITY THANKSGIVING
SERVICE

This year Clearfield Community observance of Thanksgiving, which is fixed by President Coolidge's proclamation for Thursday, Nov. 29, will be held in the First Presbyterian church. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. E. C. Reeve, responding to requests of numerous people, and the approval of the pastors of the local churches, sets the hour for 6 a. m. The service will continue only one hour, consisting of praise, prayer and a suitable address by the Rev. W. L. Cruthers of the Baptist Church. The objects to which the offerings of Thanksgiving will be devoted are the Home for Children and the Hospital. The full details of the service which will be of exceptional character in the various exercises, will be published in The Progress next week upon the return of Dr. Reeve, who expects to occupy his pulpit this coming Sunday.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lousy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "pick up" the spirits. 45c and 30c.

Such happy sounds as they were! Jack wanted to see the wheels go 'round and when they went 'round, he squealed for joy. Progress Editorial For Women

HER NEIGHBOR'S GOWN

By FLORENCE DAVIES

The wife of the president of the United States, so the papers say, has completed her fall shopping. That's an interesting item in itself, since the clothes worn by the first lady of any land always have a certain fascination for women in any corner of the globe.

In this particular case, the papers state that Mrs. Coolidge is not only all ready for any emergency, with everything complete, from hats to hosiery (what a blessed relief, if any of us could be sure of that) but that she has turned her back on Paris labels and chosen made-in-America garments.

Some of the papers rather infer that Mrs. Coolidge made this choice from patriotic motives. But she herself, would be the first to laugh at such a conclusion. Doubtless she would have been perfectly equal to the sacrifice if buying American-made clothes were only an act of patriotism, and not a pleasant thing to do. But the fact is, that there's no self sacrifice about that process at all. For America has learned to make the smartest clothes in the world. A Paris label is a pretty tradition. But while the individual Paris dress-makers continue to turn out lovely creations, the American manufacturer has come nearer to expressing the American type, not only in the lines of his garments but in that indescribable element which is a little more than style. American clothes have a kind of "snap", which more than offsets what the French refer to as "chic."

But while Mrs. Coolidge deserves no great credit for not seeking Paris labels she has carried her Americanism to a greater length in another direction, than any other woman in her position. She has accepted the fact that she lives in an industrial country, a country which has committed itself to factory processes, a country which has gone in for quantity production, and like it or not, right or wrong, she can not turn back the clock. Therefore she said to the firm of which she bought her outfit that she would not demand that her gowns should be exclusive models. In some cases she was informed that the dress she had chosen was duplicated.

"That," said Mrs. Coolidge "makes no difference. I will take the dress anyhow."

Probably this is the first time in the history of the world that the wife of the chief executive of one of the first powers has consented to wear a dress which might be duplicated by an ordinary citizen in the next block.

The world moves, and it's evident that Mrs. Coolidge, for one, moves with it.

She recognizes that the factory system has come to stay. She knows that the highest priced designers in the land have been employed to create the models. She chooses one that pleases her and gives her sister in the next town or next street the privilege of doing the same. And by so doing, without losing her sense of fitness, or fineness, she proclaims herself truly democratic and truly American.

Tom Sims SAYS--

MRS. BUTLER'S ACHES AND PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

W. Philadelphia, Pa. "When I cleaned house last April I must have overfilled for after that I had pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged. I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from store nor walk four or five blocks without getting terrible pains in my back and abdomen and lower limbs. I want to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My husband said that if it did but so much good for the same trouble, I should try it. So I have taken it and it is doing me good. Whenever I feel heavy or bad it puts me right on my feet again. I am able to do my work with pleasure and am getting strong and stout. I still take the Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash." Some scallawag entered the home of Reuben Bilger one evening last week and rummaged his writing desk in quest of something or other. There were some valuable papers in the desk but they were not taken, although they were scattered about over the floor. Mr. Bilger was upstairs in bed and did not hear the intruder.

Also a group of members of the Legion visited the schools and gave demonstrations. It is the intention of the Legion to have these cards distributed in every country school house in the county. The instructing of the use of the flag on all occasions is a good study in the public schools of this borough as well as in schools in Clearfield County.

The many friends of these two ladies have no doubt but the best of wishes for their future happiness.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran means to your family's health?

Eaten regularly each day, Kellogg's Bran will permanently relieve constipation; it will free you from dangerous toxic poisons that lead to 30% of all human illness; it will remove the cause and create a bad breath; it will clear a pimply complexion through its work on the bowels. In fact, Kellogg's Bran, through its natural action as a bulk, indigestible agent, will tone-up the whole system!

If you know exactly what constipation means from a medical viewpoint, you would lose no time eating Kellogg's Bran yourself and serving it daily to your family. And, Kellogg's is actually delicious, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of eating cereals. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; in chronic cases, with each meal.

There are many attractive ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it in winter with hot milk as a cereal. Or, mix it with cereals before serving. Many housewives cook it with cereals, in each case adding two tablespoonfuls for each person. You will also enjoy the nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran when it has been sprinkled over hot or cold cereals.

You have missed some of the joys of life if you have not eaten raisin bread, muffins, griddle-cakes, etc., made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each box. Don't delay your fight against constipation; don't lose a minute in the great battle against illness! You can buy Kellogg's Bran from all grocers and you can have it served in individual packages at first-class hotels, restaurants and clubs.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING POLLOCK

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Chas. Jewett, in love with the beautiful girl, Daniel Gilchrist, married her. Goodkind for his money, Jewett is dismissed from the fashionable Church of the Nativity in New York because of his radical views.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"That's the very time to go on," he answered earnestly. "If we stop now because it doesn't work, that isn't fair."

"No, I agree," she said.

"And faith moves mountains," he continued. He paused a moment, looking at her hesitantly. "Once upon a time," he said simply, "there was a woman who'd been sick 12 years."

"What was the matter with her?" queried the girl, interested.

"I don't know. But there was a man in that city who said he could cure her."

"And everybody laughed at him—as they would today. But the woman didn't laugh, and one morning when he was passing her house she got up and followed him—just to touch the hem of his cloak. And what do you think?"

"I suppose," the girl said eagerly, leaning forward.

"The man cured," said Daniel.

"And the man said—"

"I know," she interrupted. "The man had made the whole."

"That's right," he smiled.

"Could God do that for me?" she asked earnestly.

"Yes," he said with conviction.

"It would be an awful big favor."

"But if he doesn't," Gilchrist put in, "you must go on. If faith doesn't cure her, it helps us to bear them. And that's almost the same thing, isn't it?"

"Yes," she said with a trace of a doubtful smile.

"The believing you're Cinderella," he added.

"Yes," she said. This time she smiled a bit.

"We can't decide what we want and then be angry and doubtful because it doesn't happen our way. We continue to believe all the time it's happening. We say the only thing we can be sure of is that we know what's best."

"That's right," she nodded. "You mean, if God wants me to be well, some day he'll make me well?"

"If you believe hard enough," he declared.

"And if he doesn't?"

"Then that's right—if you believe hard enough. Then she looked down at the clock in front of him. "You can't reach your supper," she said with a smile.

"I've had plenty," he replied, getting up slowly with the satisfaction of one who had had "meat to eat that he knew not of."

"I'll send a friendly up for the boy," she said as she left.

Gilchrist walked to the window, looked out a moment and then started to draw the shade.

The door swung open hurriedly

and Pearl Henning, with a look of fright in her eyes, shouted to him excitedly.

"Mr. Gilchrist, don't stand by that window!"

Daniel looked at her a moment and then, with that strange tranquility that was his, turned and calmly drew down the shade.

CHAPTER XVIII

The Warning

ALMOST trembling under the nervous tension of alarm, Pearl Henning watched Gilchrist, as in calm deliberation, he turned to the other window, peered out inquisitively, then drew its shade and walked calmly toward her.

"Hello, Pearl," he said, surveying a freshly dressed girl of 25, dark, pretty, almost delicate. "How well you're looking. The worst of them."

"Yes, the matter with the window?"

"It isn't safe," she said in a hoarse whisper.

Gilchrist smiled. "Are you going to advise me to carry a pistol, too?" he asked.

"No, just keep out of the sight of—"

"Of whom?" he inquired.

"Joe Henning," she said sharply.

"I thought Joe was in Black River."

"He isn't, though," she answered, still very nervous. "I told you he was ashamed to go home. I told you he was gonna stay here and get you."

"Well," queried Daniel.

"Well—he stayed. I went to him—like I told you—and said it wasn't you—and said to take me back. And he said I was a liar and he was gonna get you. I told you all that."

"Yes, I guess you did."

"While he was workin' uptown I didn't hear nothin' about him," the girl continued. "But a little while ago he lost his job and began hangin' around down here. He's been drinkin' and talkin' wild, and I come in to tell you."

"That's kind of you, Pearl, but I'm not afraid of Joe," he reassured her.

"I am," she said, seriously. "He's got his gang. I know." There was an emphatic accent on the last word.

"How do you know?" asked Daniel.

She hesitated a moment, embarrassed.

"Well," she said, finally, "last night I met up with one of his pals—and he'd been drinkin' and he said Joe said you was livin' on women and this place was a blind, and nobody's wife was safe while you was in the neighborhood. And this man said they was gonna get together and drive you out." She gestured hysterically. "They're dangerous. Mr. Gilchrist. For God's sake, telephone the police!"

"There's no telephone here, Pearl," he said evasively. "But there's always an officer at hand, and I'm among friends. Don't worry. Sit down and wait for the morning. I haven't seen you in ages."

She did not need his invitation, but continued to pace the floor nervously.

"Two weeks," she corrected.

"What are you doing?"

"I'm workin' at Baylin's department store," she said, uneasily.

"Like it?"

"Better than bein' with Joe."

There was a delay in her answer.

"If you'd stayed with Joe," he said, with just the shadow of reproach, "maybe he wouldn't be drinkin'."

"He always did," she flashed back.

"That's why I asked you to stick around in Black River. That's one reason I quit."

"One reason?" he looked at her inquiringly.

"They was others," she admitted, a bit grudgingly. "I wanted good clothes and a good time—just like other women."

"Yes," he said, seriously, looking back into his own heart—"like other women."

Pearl straightened up with an air of pride.

"And I've got 'em," she declared, waving boastfully at her costume.

"Yes, you've got them," said Gilchrist gravely. "But don't you think—sometimes—you and the other women—that they cost too much?"

"I don't get you," she looked at him quizzically.

"I only mean," he started, "that there's something worth more than good clothes and a good time?"

He wasn't sure she understood. And neither was she. "A good home," he went on, "with love in it—and little children."

Pearl hesitated a moment, pulling nervously at a sleeve as she turned her back on the question. As had been her custom when she faced unpleasant things, she ran from it. She hurried to the window and with a cat-like approach drew the shade aside just a trifle.

"We hadn't ought to be here talkin'," she flung back over her shoulder as she peeped out the narrow slit. She was trying to establish some basis for her flight from his question.

"Why not?" he asked blandly.

"I'm frightened of Joe," she said.

"You needn't be," he reassured again.

She came back now, relieved that she had turned the conversation.

"I can't help it. I got a hunch. I told you all this man said and I ain't told you how he come to me."

But he said it was gonna be soon, and I got a hunch something's gonna happen tonight. Please let me go out and phone. Please let me get the police."

She watched him shake his head smilingly. Then she straightened. "You're crazy, Mr. Gilchrist," she exclaimed excitedly. "You're just crazy. And I'm goin'."

She hurried toward the door. It opened before she reached it and Clara Goodkind entered. She was smartly gowned, but somehow she gave the impression of being disheveled, of having dressed in haste.

"Clara—Mrs. Goodkind," said Gilchrist in surprise. He paused and looked at Pearl. "Mrs. Henning's just going."

"Mrs. Henning?" Clara looked with tired eyes and turned to the uneasy girl in front of her.

"Pearl Henning," Gilchrist exclaimed. "You've heard your husband mention her name."

Pearl had been searching for something to say. The mention of Jerry offered an opportunity.

"I know your husband," she said simply.

Unsettling discussion in the board of directors of the Clearfield team as a result of the protest of game between Huntingdon and Lock Haven.

Huntingdon is making a protest for poor treatment from fans would be like a snake biting himself, as the treatment handed out to the local gridders during the stay in Huntingdon and through a game was about the worst ever and to a Clearfield team visiting Huntingdon.

Lock Haven High's powerful grid machine overwhelmed Johnstown, 40-7 at Johnstown Saturday.

The score does not quite show the type of game played as Lock Haven had numerous second string men while the playing of the entire Lock Haven eleven featured.

For the first time in several years the team was allowed to win.

JORDAN'S

UP SHE GOES

A musically worth-while and distinctly enjoyable play is "Up She Goes" which William A. Brady brings from a year's successful run at the Playhouse, New York, to the Driggs Theatre for an engagement of one night Monday, November 26th.

The place is saturated with mirth, clever lines and dainty melodies. Three well-known authors are responsible for the tremendous success which this piece enjoyed in New York and elsewhere. They are Frank Craven, Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy. To Mr. Craven we owe the book of "Up She Goes." This well-known playwright and actor will be remembered as the author of "The First Year." To Messrs. Tierney and McCarthy we owe the music and lyrics respectively of "Up She Goes." These young composers will be remembered by their collaboration of the score of the famous "Irene." Given these prominent three with their finger in the pie, together with the exquisite production provided by Mr. Brady the play was bound to be a success. It only remains for you to see for yourself, and judge its merits.

Great Work Has Unappeared. The first complete English translation was made by Martin Kroeber, who translated it into English. It is a translation of the original Hebrew and Greek texts from other translations. Naverth, it is regarded as a scholarly work. No perfect copy is known to exist.

Few Trades in Iceland. There are few trades or crafts in Iceland, every man being compelled as a rule to depend upon his own skill for his support. The natives usually make their own clothes, shoes, their own horses, and manufacture their saddles.

A picture whose story will clutch your heart, whose beauty will dazzle your eyes, whose spectacular features will make you wonder with admiration, "Manslaughter" at the Driggs Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.—Adv.

Domestic Happiness. Everything Domestic Happiness is the end of most all our pursuits, and the most reward of all our pains. We most find ourselves forever torn from this delightful fruition, thus lost to all industry, and grow weary of all their earthly affairs. Thus become had subjects, had relations, had friends and had men.—Puck.
